

san francisco electric outages

Planned PG&E electric outages during wildfire season may affect San Francisco.

Impacts include:

- Homes, businesses and public places without electricity.
- Inoperable traffic signals and transit systems.
- Medical devices without electricity.

- Keep a flashlight with extra batteries. Avoid using candles because of risk of fire.
- Stock up on nonperishable food & make sure you have a manual can opener.
- Store water-filled plastic containers in your freezer to use as blocks of ice to prevent food from spoiling.

during

- Check on neighbors, friends & family.
- Turn off & unplug major appliances to eliminate fire hazards when electricity comes back on.
- Keep refrigerator & freezer doors closed to keep food cold.

after

- Reset clocks, thermostats & other programmed equipment after electricity is restored.

We believe in connection, not catastrophe.

HERE'S THE THING—actual emergencies look more like people coming together than cities falling apart. Past disasters from Sandy to Tohoku have proved that connected communities are more resilient. Of course, preparedness is about getting your supplies together. But it's also about knowing your neighbors, lending a hand, and sharing your knowledge.

So let's take action.

When we pool our skills, resources, and support systems, large tasks suddenly become more manageable. In the long run, this means we're better prepared for a disaster. In the short run, we're making our neighborhoods that much nicer.

Your network is a wealth of skills and resources. Maybe your downstairs neighbor has a generator. Or the guy at the grocery store is pretty handy with tools. It doesn't matter if you're not an expert. Everyone has something to contribute.

5 simple steps to be more prepared today

1 Identify an out of area contact.

2 Know your connections— who will you rely on and who will rely on you?

3 Establish a meeting place for you and your connections.

4 Take stock of the things you use every day that also could be useful in an emergency. These are the makings of disaster supplies.

5 Talk about what you've done to be prepared with the people you care about.

Handy tips

- + Store heavy items on the lowest shelves.
- + Secure pictures and wall hangings and use restraints to secure heavy items such as bookcases and file cabinets.
- + Keep a pair of sneakers under your bed and a flashlight close by.
- + Keep hallways and exits free for easy evacuation.
- + Have a fire extinguisher in your home (and know how to use it!).

During a Quake

- 1 Drop, cover and hold on.
Drop down and get under a strong table. If you are not near a table, drop against an interior wall and cover your head and neck with your arms. Stay away from windows.
- 2 Stay put.
Whether you're in a car, bed, or public place, stay put and wait until the shaking stops. If you're outdoors, steer clear of wires or falling objects.
- 3 Stay calm.
Keep calm and carry on. Keeping your wits about you will ensure that you make safe choices for yourself and those around you.

After a Quake

- 1 Check your surroundings.
Check for damage, and for anyone who is injured and in need of attention.
- 2 Leave a trail.
If you leave home, leave a sign telling friends and family your new location. Digitally savvy? Tweet or update your Facebook page to say you're okay.
- 3 Stay tuned.
Listen to the radio for important information and instructions. Aftershocks, which often follow large quakes, can cause damage too.

Tsunami preparedness

Know the Warning Signs

Strong ground shaking, a loud ocean roar, or the water receding are nature's warnings.

Official warnings might come via siren, radio, television, text message, social media or first responders.

Move Inland & High Ground

Follow the blue tsunami evacuation route signs.

Stay There

Waves may arrive for several hours after initial impact. Wait for the all clear from emergency officials.
